

Juliet's Home Is Doomed.
Paris, Feb. 6.—A Verona dispatch says: "The historic house, where, according to tradition, Juliet dwelt when she was wooed by Romeo, is in danger of collapsing. The wall is cracked and repairs are being made, but it is feared the house is doomed."

MANY CATHOLICS ARE NOW LISTED

WONDERFUL GROWTH OF THE CHURCH IN RECENT YEARS.

JANESVILLE IS ON THE LIST

Approximately Forty-Five Hundred Catholics Reside in the Bower City.

In the United States and its island dependencies there are 22,127,354 Roman Catholics, according to the official figures which have been compiled by the M. H. Wiltz Company of Milwaukee, for its Catholic directory for 1905. The Catholic population of the continental United States is 12,462,792; Philippine Islands, 7,958,699; Porto Rico, 1,000,000; Hawaii, 22,000; and Cuba, 1,573,802. This is the first time the official Catholic census of the Philippines has been published. The compilation for the year 1904 showed the total Catholic population of the continental United States to be 11,887,317, making the increase for the year 575,476.

The Catholic population of the city of Janesville is approximately 4,500. No exact figures can be given but estimates of the clergy of the Janesville Catholic churches place the number of souls at that figure. In the St. Patrick's parish there are about 3,000 and in St. Mary's parish 1,500. There are three clergymen over the two parishes, Dean E. M. McGinnity and Rev. Father J. J. McGinnity over the St. Patrick's and Rev. Father W. A. Goebel over the St. Mary's.

Statistics Show Increase.

The following statistics are given for the Catholic church in the continental United States for the years 1905 and 1904:

1905—Archbishops, 15; bishops, 88; clergy, secular, 12,253; religious, 5,522; total clergy, 17,775; churches with resident priests, 7,481; churches with churches, 3,900; total churches, 11,380; seminaries, 82; students, 926; colleges for boys, 191; schools for girls, 692; parishes with schools, 4,235; children attending schools, 1,031,378; orphan asylums, 232; orphanages, 37,893; charitable institutions, 987; total children in Catholic institutions, 1,201,899; Catholic population, 12,462,792.

1904—Archbishops, 15; bishops, 82; clergy, secular, 9,940; religious, 5,237; total clergy, 15,177; churches with resident priests, 7,265; missions with churches, 2,918; total churches, 11,183; universities, 7; seminaries, 71; students, 4,708; colleges for boys, 179; academies for girls, 646; parishes with schools, 4,601; children attending, 956,088; orphan asylums, 250; orphanages, 36,641; charitable institutions, 741; total children in Catholic institutions, 1,156,890; Catholic population, 11,887,317.

Since last year two dioceses—Fall River, Mass., and Great Falls, Mont.—have been created. Last year there were four vacancies in the American hierarchy. This year every bishopric and archbishopric is filled. Of the dioceses of the continental United States, the two largest are those of Chicago and New York, with each a Catholic population of 1,200,000. The smallest is that of Baker City, Nev., with 3,218.

The Philippine Islands have a Catholic population of 7,958,699, divided among five dioceses as follows: Archdiocese of Manila, 1,891,826; Jaro, 1,321,194; Vigan, 900,000; Camarines, 700,000; Cebu, 2,145,679. From this statement it appears that the dioceses of Manila, Jaro and Cebu

A CURE FOR ALL

Not a Patent Cure-All, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need not look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no further than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its greatest success is in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organs and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

are much larger than any in the United States.

Proportion of Churches Small. The number of priests and churches for such a large population, however, is comparatively small. The archdiocese of Manila has 424 priests; Jaro, 100; Vigan, 110; Camarines, 107; Cebu, 138. Manila has 294 churches; Jaro, 192; Vigan, 171; Camarines, 124; Cebu, 284. The province of Cebu includes the Ladrone Islands, Porto Rico, with a Catholic population of 1,000,000, has 119 priests and 88 churches. The vicariate apostolate of Hawaii has a Catholic population of 32,000.

LATE WORD FROM STOCK EXCHANGE

Commercial Revival Has Begun—Government Reports Were Good.

New York.—The underlying strength of the commercial revival and expansion is best illustrated by the report of the United States Steel corporation for the last quarter of 1904, wherein an increase is shown of more than 40 per cent over the same period in 1903. If there were any lurking suspicion among the speculative public as to the ability of the company to maintain its preferred dividend, it should have been dispelled by this statement.

After providing for interest on the funded debt, the quarterly preferred dividend and sundry other allowances for depreciation, reserve funds, etc., there still remains a surplus of $5,000,000 over all fixed charges for the year ending December 31, 1904, which is equivalent to 1 per cent on its common stock. Should the company's earnings continue at this rate, 2 per cent can be paid on the common for 1905. It seems to us that the impetus heretofore given to all classes of industrial enterprises ought to carry this corporation's earnings to much higher levels in the near future. At any rate, should it continue its present earning capacity, the beneficial effects on the company's securities ought to be recognized at once.

There may come a time, however, when all our conservative industrial securities will have been thoroughly digested, and the appetite of the hungry speculative public will be calling for more. Then in all probability steel common will be selling well up in the sixties with its regular dividend rate restored.

This is a prosperous country, and even though we may encounter the temporary depressions which are bound to come, the speculator or investor who buys for keeps will in the end win.

A conclusive illustration of the healthy condition of the United States Steel corporation is demonstrated by the fact that the company now has on hand unfilled orders amounting to approximately 5,000,000 tons, against 2,200,000 tons at the beginning of 1904. The company's report, in our opinion, should be accepted by the most pessimistic observer as a revival of business universally.

The unexpected strength in the market Saturday last was supplemented by a decline on Monday, when the Northern Securities decision was announced. From a technical standpoint the decision seems to have been a victory for those desirous of a rehearing in the courts and indefinitely postponing the date of distribution of the Northern Securities assets.

Activity continued on a fairly large scale during the week, and the general market recovered this loss. The specialties were taken in hand by their respective interests and advanced to high and more attractive levels. The strength of Wisconsin Central seems to have a solid foundation to build upon. The preferred stock is reported likely to go on a dividend basis this year, as the road is now earning about 7 per cent on that issue. The control is said to be in the hands of the Hawley interests and the directors of the old voting trust.

A prominent feature of the week was the advance in the closely held North-Western railroad stocks. Omaha and Chicago & North-Western advanced sharply on small dealings, accompanied by reports that any contemplated change in the status of the North-Western railroad situation would result in an arrangement advantageous to the Omaha, and it was also reported that North-Western stockholders will be offered an exchange of 3 1/2 per cent bonds on a basis of 3 to 1.

The advance in Kansas City Southern is attributed largely to the manipulation on the part of the Gould and Harlan interests, as well as the refusal of the Dutch interests to sell their holdings. It is reported that the latter have insisted upon making the preferred a 4 per cent dividend payer in April. The earnings certainly justify such action, which is in line with the European plan of paying out dividends freely.

There are many incidents, taking place that reflect significant developments. The bond market as reported by the important bond houses is swept bare of the first-class securities. The avidity with which the Japanese 6s have been taken, as well as the Cuban 5s, demonstrates a dearth of sound investments. All signs point toward higher prices, with increased activity in speculation as well as general business.

LETTER FROM A FOREIGN VOYAGE

Mr. and Mrs. W. Honeysett Write to The Gazette from Liverpool of Their Trip.

Liverpool, Jan. 27.—As we are spending a holiday in England, we thought some account of our sojourn might interest friends at Janesville. Leaving Boston on Dec. 12th on S. S. "Saxonia," we arrived in Liverpool on Dec. 24th, after a most enjoyable passage. This being our first trip across the Atlantic, it was quite an experience in itself. We were impressed with the care which is taken to ensure the comfort and convenience of passengers by this fine vessel. The most good feeling prevailed on board, each one contributing to the pleasure and enjoyment of the others, the time being pleasantly wiled away with games, concerts and other entertainments. When we reached the river Mersey and almost within sight of Liverpool we were developed in a dense fog which delayed our landing 48 hours. This was unfortunate for those who were booked for Norway and other distant places, as it prevented them spending Christmas with their friends. We were more fortunate, being met by our friends, whose hospitality we are enjoying, and on the morning we participated in the Xmas festivities after the good old English fashion. Having settled down in our new quarters, we speedily availed ourselves of the opportunity of visiting the sights of the city. First and foremost are the docks, over nine miles in length; then the celebrated landing slope, of which the natives are justly proud, which is largely patronized by them as a promenade. From here we saw some of the great ocean liners depart and a novel sight it was. What with the various parks, beautiful and extensive, looking fresh and green even at this season of the year; the fine public highways in the city, and other interesting sights, there is plenty to occupy our time very pleasantly. We are about to start for Scotland to visit Mrs. Honeysett's native place, where she hopes to renew old acquaintances with friends of her parents who migrated to Wisconsin thirty-six years ago. The weather has been fine and mild with the exception of a brief fall of snow two days ago, so that we have been able to get about very freely. With kind regards,

Yours very truly,
MR. AND MRS. W. HONEYSETT.

BUSY WEEK FOR THE LEGISLATURE

Many Bills Will Be Presented in the Two Houses at Madison Very Soon.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—Hundreds of bills will pour into the Wisconsin legislature this week, including some of the measures to which the La Follette faction in Wisconsin is pledged. Not all of the so-called platform bills will be offered by individual members, it is said; it being determined that it is desirable to have them introduced later as committee bills. This, perhaps, will give a better chance of passage. The railroad rate commission bill, the defeat of which measure will cause Governor La Follette to hand back to the legislature the election to the United States senate, will assuredly be offered by the railroad committee either of the senate or assembly, probably simultaneously in both houses. After next Friday all the bills of individual members will be in, as that date has been set by a joint resolution for the cessation of all new business, except committee bills. Only two administration measures have made their appearance thus far—the Warner state civil service bill and the act already enacted and published, changing the statute of limitations so as to allow the state to bring suit against the railroads to collect the large sums which Governor La Follette and Railroad Commissioner Thomas claim due the state from the roads for taxes. The state can now sue for the past six instead of two years. Much adverse sentiment has developed thus early to the Warner civil service bill and it seems that it will not be passed, at least, not in its present sweeping form.

A SQUARE MILE FOR THE FARMERS

ARGUMENTS MADE IN FAVOR OF THIS ARRANGEMENT.

DIRECTLY OPPOSES THE FARM

Would Make the Settlers Land Rich Instead of Just Enough to Cultivate.

Senator Paris Gibson of Montana, in company with Gny E. Mitchell, secretary of the National Irrigation Association, called upon the president to discuss the various measures before congress, affecting Montana, Colorado and South Dakota, and allowing a homestead entryman to take up a square mile of land instead of 160 acres.

Senator Gibson stated to the president that he believed a 640 acre homestead policy was one of the most dangerous and menacing pieces of legislation which had been suggested. He said that it was proposed to open up the rich western lands in these large tracts and that it would result in the aggregation of great holdings, far worse than anything of the kind which had yet occurred.

No man can say at this time, Senator Gibson declared, what are purely irredeemable grazing lands, and what are agricultural or may shortly become agricultural lands. Great tracts of country are being cultivated today in small farms, which ten years ago were looked upon as utterly worthless, and the womb of the future certainly contains even greater surprises. Under our increasing knowledge of conditions, improving methods of agriculture and the constant discovery and introduction by the Department of Agriculture of arid land crops, we are making wonderful progress, and why, Senator Gibson pleaded, should we check this great land producing development by bringing upon our western country the curse of further great land holdings. No man, he stated, can successfully farm a square mile as he can 160 acres, and to give men 640 acres would mean that in most cases they would not try to farm it, they would not struggle with the soil and with new crops and succeed in growing anything upon it; it would simply support a few head of cattle or a small band of sheep. Senator Gibson told the president that he spoke from a thirty years' residence and an active and practical farm experience in Montana.

Mr. Mitchell added that the objection of the National Irrigation Association to the square mile homestead policy was that very large areas of good agricultural land where 160 acres was ample for a home, would be included in the 640-acre homesteads and he supported Senator Gibson's contention that with our present knowledge of western lands, a proper and intelligent classification is impossible. He mentioned an instance coming under his notice last summer embracing some hundred thousand acres of high table land in the Cherry Patch ridge, a day's drive from Harlem, Montana, where the land had been grazed for 20 years, open to homestead entry, but with no thought of its being farming land capable of supporting families. Last season 10 acres were planted to various grains, flax, etc., and in spite of very late planting and an exceptionally poor year, excellent yields were produced without irrigation, an utter astonishment to the people of Harlem, and now the country is being settled up with the assurance of a large and prosperous farming community.

Ever Troubled With Rheumatism In Your Feet?

Under date of June 23, 1904, this letter was received from Ed. W. R. Stroder, Pastor First Baptist Church, Chicago, Ill.: "My wife was sorely afflicted with Rheumatism in the feet. I tried doctors and many remedies, but she got no better. I wrote you for a bottle of Seven Bars, which proved a great blessing to her."

How some women do suffer with their feet. They can't hardly stand on them, let alone walk. When Rheumatism gets a good hold, we've had them tell us just how they've suffered and asked us if we knew of a good, honest remedy. We always recommend Seven Bars—don't know of anything better. It costs but 30 cents a bottle, and when it fails, return the empty or partly used bottle and we'll return your money. Seven Bars is a great remedy for Stomach troubles, but it's good for many other ailments, too. Try it and see.

MORE SNOW IS ON WAY HERE TODAY

Janesville May Be Treated to Milder Snowy Weather for a Few Days.

The unusual atmospheric conditions of the last few days culminated yesterday in one of the most general and widespread rain, snow and sleet storms of recent years. The area of precipitation covers the entire country east of Kansas City. The fall of snow in Iowa, Missouri, northern Indiana and northern Illinois and Michigan was rather heavy, but the temperatures were not unusually low. Snow or sleet is falling in the upper Ohio valley, the lake regions and the Mississippi valley north of Missouri. Lower Michigan, upper Michigan and Wisconsin—Snow Monday and probably Tuesday; brisk northeast to north winds.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Mr. Edward Stanwood, author of "American Tariff Controversies," has contributed an article to the February Atlantic on "The Democratic Predicament," which is a clear statement of facts concerning that party. In closing the article Mr. Stanwood says:

"That cannot be a strong party in which both Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Bryan are leaders of factions, nor can it be strong if either of them is titular leader and the other nominally a follower. It is merely the expression of an opinion which can be neither verified nor refuted, that at present Mr. Bryan reflects the political sentiments of by far the more numerous wing of the party. Assuming that to be the fact, the logical consequence of the existing situation is that those who form that wing should and will take permanent control of the organization. Inasmuch as they would be hampered in the future as they have been in the past by men who call themselves democrats, but who have no sympathy with their forward policy, they should enter upon their new course with such clear and unmistakable statements of their purposes as to compel the withdrawal from the party of those who are with it, but not of it."

"This is a cold proposition but it is the only alternative left to the democratic party. The sentiment, in so conservative a state as Wisconsin, is strong for Bryan and the state convention at Oshkosh last August would have been controlled by Hearst had his followers had a leader in the pre-convention campaign. Even Rock county would have sent a Bryan delegation if the delegates had not been outwitted."

The national convention at St. Louis was practically controlled by Bryan and when the campaign closed with overwhelming defeat he was in position to say: "I told you so," and he has been saying it hard ever since. He has a larger personal following in the nation today than any man except Roosevelt, and his popularity will increase as the spasm for fads develops."

Old time democracy is as dead as a herring, and it will never be resurrected. Old line republicanism is also in the throes of reform, and it remains to be seen whether the party possesses vitality enough to withstand the attack."

The long continued era of prosperity contributes to the spirit of unrest and the masses are clamoring for some sort of a change. It is an era when erratic and magnetic leaders of any political faith commands a hearing and there is no lack of this class of leaders."

Bryan stands at the head of the list and Bryanism has absorbed democracy just as effectively as La Folletteism absorbed republicanism in Wisconsin last year. The only difference is in the result. The party in the state will recover in time, but not so the national democratic party."

There is much in a name, and more in party association which reach back through half a century and it is not surprising that democrats who believe in the principles which made the party strong, relinquish with sorrow and regret the party affiliations of a lifetime."

But the welfare of the nation is of more vital importance than the death of a party and conservative, level headed democrats may find it necessary to unite under some banner with all other conservative people to stem the tide of fanaticism known as modern reform."

The republican party is yet intact but it is fringed with socialism and tintured with fanaticism. The policy and action of the party for the next four years will determine largely its future. If it yields to the clamor for radical and dangerous reforms, with which it is besieged, the way will be open for a Bryan leader to step to the front in 1908."

This is not a pessimistic view of the situation. It is simply a forecast of what the future may contain if the present high pressure of reform becomes epidemic. The forecast will not culminate in disaster of conservative judgment and common sense combine to prevent it."

The war of the rebellion was the result of hot-headed and erratic advice and leadership and the war now being waged against corporations and indirectly against the industries of the country, is equally ill-advised. The events of the next four years will largely determine the status of all political parties and will determine the ability of self government."

President Roosevelt was so busy with other matters Monday that divorce, the trusts, national defenses and District of Columbia legislation were the only problems he had time to solve."

It must gratify Brodie Duke to observe that the world is not standing around with breathless interest waiting to learn whether he is insane or not."

Now that Mr. Rockefeller owns most of the railroads of the country he might be asked to give his personal guaranty that no more rebates shall be granted to favored shippers."

Those London scientists who propose to secure an unlimited supply of gold from sea water are likely to succeed in their plan unless they wake up too soon."

While the packers have clear consciences, according to their attorney, the jury may insist on having the consciences brought into court and marked "exhibit A."

As Chicago traction officials see it, the Brooklyn company which has designed a model car without straps has omitted the most important part of the car."

It must be awful for the railroads to have to linger around the operating room, now occupied by the beef trust, and reflect that their turn comes next."

Russian radicals who think the time for an uprising has not arrived evidently intend that when one is pulled off there shall be something doing."

Hoch will be tempted to plead lack of time or a previous engagement when invited to attend a reunion of his wives in a Chicago courtroom."

Since Chauncey Depew has lost his job with the railroads he is in luck that he secured another six-year term as senator."

Hoch denies that he has married twenty-two wives, but then he may not be good at remembering exact figures."

What kind of a job do you suppose Nicholas Romanoff could get himself elected to if he should run for office?"

After a little closer inspection of Oyama's forces Kuropatkin decided not to advance after all."

Like all victims of an inveterate habit, Hoch tried proposing to a widow once too often."

Gov. Vandeman of Mississippi continues to show great ability in living down to his reputation."

Is Tom Lawson getting tired or is he simply becoming aware that the public is so?"

With Hoch it was always a case of love at first sight of the widow's money."

Another reform which this country needs is reform of the railway-pass evil."

PRESS COMMENT.

Sheboygan Journal: Strange to say, the price of porterhouse steak has not dropped a penny since the supreme court knocked out the beef trust."

Racine Journal: Slowly it is being learned that scientific forestry pays as much year by year as does the average farm."

Milwaukee Sentinel: "We should," says Grover Cleveland, "be the most cheerful and light hearted people in the world." Another covert dig at Bryan."

Rockford Register-Gazette: There doesn't seem to be any grand rush among Russians in America to obey the czar's order to come home and fight the Japs."

Oshkosh Times: It is observable that the human race is attaining higher average ages as time passes. This is because life insurance is becoming general."

Lafayette, Ind. Journal: The way to abolish tipping is to stop tipping. Landlords can't do it and waiters won't, but the public has the power and all it has to do is to exercise it."

Chicago Record-Herald: A Massachusetts pastor left the stub of his cigar in his study the other day, the result being a fire which destroyed the church. Here is another strong argument against the use of tobacco by ministers."

Doston Transcript: The number of young men now being elected to the senate leads the Herald to observe that "pretty soon the title of senator, which comes from senex, will be deprived of its original and etymological significance." That happened to the title of "alderman" some time ago."

Oshkosh Northwestern: The people of Oshkosh will readily appreciate the impatience of Dr. Gordon these days, in his eagerness for spring and the opportunity which it will bring for setting out that beautiful double row of apple trees along the road between this city and the Northern hospital."

Chicago Tribune: Peter Piper had just picked the peck of pickled peppers. "Reminds me, somehow," he said, "of Pennsylvania preparing to punish the perverse Pennsylvania papers for printing pert and provoking pictures." Playfully pinching Penrose, he plucked a particularly promising perquisite from the political plum tree and proceeded on his promenade."

Green Bay Gazette: If George Lawler, the Milwaukee prizefighter who recently assaulted the sporting editor of the Evening Wisconsin, wishes to keep up his record of punishing every reported who says mean things about him he will have an army contract on his hands. Every daily paper in Milwaukee and nearly every one in the state has expressed its opinion of him, that is not at all complimentary."

Superior Telegram: We are pleased to note that statistics compiled in New York show, according to the press dispatches, that there was a smaller percentage of embezzlement in Wisconsin during 1904 than in any other state in the union. Wisconsin people may be somewhat quarrelsome about their political affairs, but they are honest, as the record shows."

La Crosse Chronicle: A couple of quack doctors are under arrest in New York for having recently sold a man a bottle of radium for $10,000 for the purpose of curing himself of Bright's disease. It was found on examination that the bottle contained nothing bearing any closer resemblance to radium than an assortment of iron filings. A sucker is born every minute in the day, most of whom are "easy money" for the discoverers of a "sure cure" for a disease they haven't got."

Exchange: Eternal vigilance is the price of health as well as of liberty. Overheated dwellings and offices are the breeding places of "bad colds" and "bad colds" are the forerunners of our most dangerous winter troubles. "Keep cool" should be the motto of him who would keep well during the winter months. It is not cold but excessive heat that makes the mischief."

Exchange: That the war is over is evident from the fact that the other night Admiral and Mrs. Dewey entertained at dinner in honor of Don Emilio De Ojeda, the Spanish minister. The latter is proving to be a popular diplomat and is well liked in Washington. If he entertains any hard feelings of the little difference back in 1898, he conceals it in a most successful manner. The Spanish minister is on particularly good terms with the hero of Manila and is frequently entertained at the Dewey home in Rhode Island avenue."

Chicago Chronicle: Sheriff Wallace Cochran of Janesville, Wis., was enjoying an after-dinner smoke the other evening when a troop of friends suddenly arrived as a surprise party. They brought cards and tables with them, and inside half an hour were playing progressive euchre. The sheriff announced that he would furnish prizes, and at the conclusion of the games handed over to each of four players a handsome bull pup. The guests were delighted with their trophies, for the sheriff is a skilled man in dogs and vouched for the excellence of the pups."

Madison Journal: Automobile fire apparatus seems to be coming. It has not as yet come into general use in this country except horseless steam fire engines propelled by their own steam. The only automobile apparatus in service in this country is a hose wagon on trial for a year or so, and is not wholly a success. In foreign countries considerable of it is used. Horseless or self-propelling steam fire engines are in service at Portland, Me., Boston, Mass., Hartford, Conn., Pittsburgh, Pa., and New Orleans."

Chicago Inter Ocean: General Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," who will be 78 on the 10th of April next, has disappointed and discouraged the Anti-Nicotine league by resuming his habit after abstaining from the use of it for several years. The General is engaged upon his autobiography at present, and it is because he could not remember many of the most interesting and instructive incidents of his youth in Indiana, or remembering, could not relate them with any satisfaction to himself, that he has returned to the loathsome weed. The charges are that had he never begun his autobiography he would never have longed for a smoke again. He had succeeded in triumphing over the vicious habit until the demon thought of it more than thirty or forty times after each meal, and he was gaining so much strength daily in his efforts to lead a new and a cleaner life that he could now and then see a man smoking a block away without wishing that he had never quit. But from the moment he sat down to write his biography he felt that something had gone out of his life and that he must find it before he could possibly make the history of his life complete."

New York Tribune: The Cleveland Plain Dealer, after trying for some time to answer inquiries regarding the occasion of Abraham Lincoln's use of the words, "You can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time, but not all the people all the time," gives it up. Colonel Hay was appointed to, but that biographer of President Lincoln had to acknowledge he never encountered the sentence when making minute investigation of Lincoln's speeches, papers, letters and recorded sayings. An Ohio congressman who had been asked the question referred the inquirer to the library of congress, where, if anywhere, the information could be obtained. The Washington Post reports the result. Assistant Librarian Spofford made a written reply, in which he says the sentence does not occur in any of Lincoln's writings, adding that Mr. Nicolay, Lincoln's secretary and associate of Colonel John Hay in writing the elaborate biography of Lincoln, told Spofford the alleged Lincoln saying was spurious. Librarian Spofford says the real author of the popular sentence was Phineas T. Barnum, the famous showman, who "fooled the people" more successfully than any other man of his time."

Temperature Almost Stationary. Surinam, in Dutch Guiana, has the smallest range of temperature of any place in the world. In summer the average is 78 and in winter 77½ degrees.

Boysish Indiscretion. A Pittsburg boy who left home to pose as a man was discovered wearing trousers much too large for him. This was easy for the police. If he had been a real man, he would have worn trousers entirely too tight for him, such as so many fashion plates foist on buyers.—Buffalo Express.

Cure for Colds. People who go barefooted and those who wear sandals instead of shoes, it is said, rarely have colds in the head or any form of influenza.

For Shining Shoes. Boots and shoes, however damp, will polish in a few minutes if a drop or two of paraffin oil be added to the blacking. It also prevents the leather from cracking.

Emery Producers. Greece and the Ionian islands produce more emery than any other country on the globe.

Hemp-Drug Causes Insanity. Of the patients in the lunatic asylum at Lahore, India, 33 per cent are believed to have been habitual hemp-drug takers.

ELECTRIC SUGGESTIONS.

For space lighting use arcs. For handsome effects use incandescents. For reliable power use electric motors.

An electric sign talks to the public for you. If your competitors are using electricity in their business, and you are not, it is a handicap race, in their favor.

Automatic closer lights are time and lamp savers, and cost next to nothing to operate.

If the steam is on and the room is cold, turn the electric fan on and let it blow against the radiator for ten minutes. It works like magic. It extracts the heat from the steam in a hurry.

Meridian lamps throw a strong light in the direction in which they point. Excellent for store lighting.

It is very a poor complexion that doesn't look well in electric light.

The successful man does not have to be driven to the use of electricity by circumstances.

OUTCOME OF THE RECENT "EXAMS"

FORECAST OF RESULTS TO BE ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

SIX ELIGIBLE FOR FIREMEN

And Twelve of the Seventeen Applicants for Police List Have Passed

Physical Tests

Results of the quiz recently conducted by the fire and police commission were to be reported at the meeting of that body at five this afternoon. On good authority the Gazette learns that the six applicants for positions with the fire department all passed their examinations. They are: Joseph H. Murray, Allen Pierce, Phil H. Marskie, James Dugan, Herman Klein, and James Sheridan.

For Police Positions

Of the seventeen who took the examinations for the eligible list of the police department, it can be definitely predicted that the following, at least, are found up to requirements in all particulars: LeRoy Graves, Thomas Morrissey, William F. Brigham, Robert J. Bear, M. J. McGuire, James J. Sennett, and James J. Doe. Those who will be found eligible in every respect save the three years' residence requirement are: Ex-Sheriff George M. Appleby, J. M. Crandall, and Thomas D. Cosgrove. Only one applicant failed to pass the rather rigid physical examination, the latter being found to be afflicted with "to-bacco heart."

To Make Recommendation

The commission, it is understood, will, in announcing its findings at the council meeting tonight, agree to waive the three-years' requirement in way of the three instances above noted in case Marshal Comstock wishes to choose from their number in making his selections.

EASTER LATE BUT ONCE A CENTURY

A Hundred Years Ago Easter Came at the Same Time as This Year.

But once in over 100 years has the date for Easter fallen on so late a date as this year, April 23. But during the present century the festival will be late in three years. In 1855 Easter Sunday fell on April 24 and this is the one time during the century that it was so late. April 23, 1916, will be Easter Sunday and in 1948 the day will come on April 24th, the latest known date and again in the year 2009 the date will be April 23. Lent is but one month in the future, coming in March 8th.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Bold, Bad Hobo: That ferocious hobo who "look full possession of the St. Paul roominghouse" Saturday evening and wanted to fight the whole police force was released this morning. He was none other than Charles Erner of the city of Nowhere, a name sufficient to make stouter hearts than that of Officer Panning quail. Charlie was peacefully taking a nap and had offered to disturb nobody. He gladly accompanied the officer to the warm and comfortable lock-up.

A Summer Resort: Several property owners at Lake Koshkonong have planned over small parks and intend to boom the lake as a summer resort this summer.

Meet Tuesday: A meeting of the physicians of the city is requested at Dr. Buckmaster's office at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening (the 7th) to further consider the business of the meeting of last Friday evening.

PUBLISHED LIST OF BARGAIN DAYS

Wednesday Will Be The Universal Bargain Day in The City.

In this issue of the Gazette is found a list of merchants and the bargains they offer for next Wednesday. The new Wednesday bargain day is an innovation in the trading line, but promises to become very popular, for in one shopping tour may be secured articles embracing every line of merchandise. The Wednesday bargain day will be a regular feature in the Janesville stores and the Gazette will reserve space in its Monday and Tuesday issues each week to announce the special offerings. Trade conditions are unusually flattering and the present year promises a decided increase over previous year's records. In addition to the present attractiveness of the local stores, the proposed bargain days will stimulate the out-of-town patronage to a considerable extent. To facilitate shopping one should clip from the Monday's or Tuesday's Gazette the list of specials and at the stores ask for "Wednesday's bargains."

AN OLD MINE IS CHANGING HANDS

Transfer of Mining Property in Colorado Was Made on Saturday Last.

J. J. White of Georgetown, Colorado, is in the city the guest of Capt. B. F. Moore, 105 Fifth avenue. Mr. White is president of the Prudential Mining company property at Georgetown and is here for the purpose of purchasing the Russell Bros. Wisconsin and Moore Lodes at Georgetown. The transaction was completed Saturday and involved $10,000. The property has been in the Russell family for twenty years and the present owners, Edward W. Arthur S. and John J. Russell, were offered some years ago $30,000 for their holdings, but refused. The property now goes into the hands of a stock company known as the Wisconsin Gold and Silver Mining company and is considered by Mr. White and Captain Moore as a very valuable property. Captain Moore has been in the Colorado mining districts for twenty-two years at different times.

TRANQUIL SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Tonight's Session Promises To Be Uneventful—Franchise Matter Will Not Be Up.

Present indications point to a short and uneventful meeting of the city fathers this evening. It is quite certain that nothing will be done with the freight franchise measure asked for by the R. B. & J. Interurban Ry. Co. The meeting of interested property holders and the road officials which was to have been held last Monday night was postponed until some future date on account of the inability of several of the aldermen to be present, and the date has not yet been set. Another petition against granting the franchise was filed today by parties owning property on "the loop." Alderman Murray has been ill for several days past and will probably not be present at the session.

IS ONE FIRM TO CONTROL FILLERS?

Story That Two-Thirds of 1904 Tobacco Is Under Option—Great Demand for Leaf.

There is a story on foot among tobacco men that a movement to control the greater part of the fillers of the new crop is on foot and that one large company has secured options on most of the fillers under contract to the packers in Wisconsin and are in the market for all others that can be secured. In speaking of this one New York tobacco trade journal says that there is reason to believe that one concern will control over two thirds of the 1904 crop of fillers.

The market is steadily becoming more brisk and a busy atmosphere continues to permeate the leaf markets all over the country. For years the market has not experienced such a briskness and with the prices of all other commodities and luxuries soaring the prices of tobacco cannot help but rise. The supply of leaf in the New York market is short, not only of the domestic crop but also the Cuban. All old Cuban leaf has been cleared from the island, and though the new Romanos do not represent an altogether ideal leaf, they are commanding a record-breaking price. There promises to be a great demand for the Wisconsin leaf and at a figure not low.

ROBT. VOORHEES' STAG PARTY NOT AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS

Landlady Complained and Gentleman Had to Appear in Court Today.

There was a pow-wow of no small dimensions in progress in the Leffingwell flats at a late hour last evening. Robert Voorhees, employed in the Marzluft factory, who recently rented all but one room of the apartments formerly occupied by Mrs. Frank Brown, whose attempted suicide has not been forgotten, was entertaining two friends from Beloit—a Mr. Gaston and a Mr. Parker. It was a stag party. Mrs. Voorhees being on a visit in Beloit. As the apartments were rented in their furnished condition, Mrs. Brown evidently became alarmed about the safety of some of her effects when she heard vocal music and scuffling issuing from the rooms. She is said to have been in quite an irritable condition, herself. At any rate she interfered, as she tells others, to save her dishes. The din that followed aroused some of the other roomers in the building and they sent for Officer Morrissey. When he arrived he proceeded to place Mr. Voorhees under arrest. In municipal court this morning the latter was fined $2 and costs amounting in all to $3. A friend was found who would guarantee the payment of the same and the gentleman was released. His version of the story was that he and his companions were quietly spending the evening in conversation when the landlady, without cause, came in to break up the party.

PHIL KING IS TO COACH BADGERS

Will Lead the Wearers of the Cardinal to Another Year of Victory.

The unanimous election of former Coach Phil King to resume charge of the University of Wisconsin football team and the choice of James Temple to handle the track athletes are accepted with the utmost hopefulness and enthusiasm in the Badger build and singular about this, too, for under a few days ago there had been many active students of influence protesting that it would be disastrous to hire either King or Temple. It seemed impossible that either should be given a contract. In fact, a member of the board of university regents was quoted as saying that the athletic association to engage the former Princetonian who for seven years developed the strongest football teams in the west for Wisconsin and who also produced creditable baseball teams. This adverse sentiment has vanished. The "anvil chorus" as the coterie of influential "knockers" was called, is silent and, in fact, apparently satisfied. Students are everywhere recalling the times they read about when in the preparatory schools, when Phil King's cry of "hard and low" was heard on the Badger gridiron, when the names of "Bly" Karel, "Big John" Richards, the two "Norsicks" Nelson and Larson, Juneau, Cochems, Driver, Pat O'Dea, Riordan and half a score of others—all the products of the coaching ability of Phil King, were the leading names in the football columns under the Madison date line. They marvel that the Wisconsin athletic authorities ever let him go and took up with the splendid players but poor coaches, Curris and Eddie Cochems. It is pleasant to alumni of Wisconsin to listen to this talk among the students. There is no wrangling at Madison now and a confidence has come that King will expeditiously place Wisconsin's cardinal near the top, if not above all other colors in the western football galaxy. There is a particular display of confidence in King, with reference to what he will do to Yost of Michigan, and regarding the outcome no indication of fear or misgiving is apparent.

WANNAMAKER MAY OPEN BIG STORE

Reported in Chicago That He Will Rent the Present Palmer House Block.

Negotiations between Mrs. Bertha Palmer and John Wannamaker, by which the Philadelphia millionaire merchant will acquire the Palmer house, Chicago, property and erect a big department store on the site, are rumored to be under way. The report is given color by the fact that the leases of those renting stores in the property are said to have been cut down from two years to six months; that Willis Howe, the manager of the caravansary, will leave May 1 to take charge of a hotel in Atlanta, and that no improvements have been made in the hotel for two years. According to the rumor Mr. Wannamaker has offered Mrs. Palmer $10,000,000 for the structure and leasehold, and the latter, it is claimed, has accepted it. Denial of the rumor is made by some of the parties to the alleged contract, but it will not be downed. The fame of the Palmer house is world-wide. Potter Palmer started the hotel before the fire of 1871. When the great conflagration swept the city it was not quite completed and was totally destroyed. The building was considered fireproof and but for an explosion in the cellar, it would have withstood the flames. It was rebuilt but again ruined by fire. Then the present structure was erected.

Home Health Club

By DAVID H. REEDER, Ph.D., D. M. D.

Few troubles are more common than that in which the veins of the lower limbs become relaxed and swollen, sometimes even bursting. A person who has just passed what is, strictly speaking, middle life, or one who has had severe strain brought to bear upon strength which is still young, observes that one of the blood vessels in his leg has become prominent and shows itself under the skin of an unusual size. There is, perhaps, no pain as yet, or any other inconvenience, but it is not a desirable symptom to have even one vessel appear in this way. By and by, other veins enlarge in a similar fashion, and even what looks like a confused knot of veins appears, particularly just under the knee on the inner side. Here they soon assume a threatening size.

This continues with both the limbs in many cases, in which no breaking of the skin occurs, but the swollen veins themselves become very painful, causing great distress. In other cases, however, the swelling occurs farther down the limb, and ere long the vessels burst, and the blood comes through the skin, creating a seriously troublesome sore. Other veins are soon involved, and the suffering becomes dreadful, while the appearance of the wound is of a truly alarming character.

How is all this explained? We must first understand to some extent the nature of the vessels which fail to perform their duty in this fashion. The arteries are those tubes through which the fresh blood passes down the limbs and into smaller and smaller vessels, giving off its nourishing qualities to the tissues as it finds its way through them. At the same time the blood gives off this nourishment it receives into its stream particles of substances that have ceased to be life sustaining, and need to be eliminated. When the upbuilding work of the arteries has been completed, the small vessels into which they flow begin to enlarge and become veins, that is, the vessels that are employed chiefly in carrying the impregnated blood back to the lungs to be refitted for the part assigned it.

In other words, the pure blood is pumped by the heart through the arteries; does scavenger work as it travels on its course, and returns by the veins, to be purified by the lungs (hence the value of deep breathing of sweet, fresh air), before again starting on its endless-chain circuit. It is when, somehow, the stream which is forcibly sent down in the arteries fails to rise with equal rapidity in the veins, that the latter swell and become so engorged at length as often to burst. The blood fails to return, however, chiefly because the tension of the veins is lessened. Instead of tight and powerful elastic tubes, they become weak and easily distended. It is the cause of this that we wish to particularly investigate. It is found that the person in whose case the ailment occurs is compelled to assume a standing position for long periods at a time. The power of the veins is much more severely tested when the blood has to be carried upward than when, in a reclining posture, it has only to pass along a level. These veins become fatigued, that is, they lose their contractile energy and are dilated, so that the stream of blood stagnates as a whole, and lodges in those parts of the veins that give way most easily.

The strong action of the heart and arteries forces the stream down, when the veins fail to carry it upward, and it soon appears in the swollen veins which lie nearest the surface.

So far the case seems easily intelligible to any ordinary mind that cares to consider it at all. But there is another feature in the explanation which is of great importance. The tension of the veins depends upon the nervous energy with which they are supplied by the entire system. Fatigue in the body usually implies more or less fatigue in the veins.

and nothing will remedy this condition but something which will increase the nervous energy generally. In applying the necessary treatment for a cure the importance of this becomes obvious. The mere fact of continuing in an upright posture does not account for the enlarging of the veins. If the supply of nervous energy was generally sufficient none of the blood vessels would swell as the result of that position, for so long as the nervous energy is adequate the veins show no tendency to relax. The blood is made to rise with as much apparent ease as it goes down the limbs, until there comes from the nerve centers a lessened amount of this same energy. The fountain of life, at least that supplying the limb in which this trouble occurs, is sending forth less than is needed for the purpose of circulation in order to maintain perfect health. The weary veins show this by failing to send the stream of blood onward.

Now, it is clear that there are several ways in which these veins may be treated when they fail in this fashion. One of the worst things which can be done is that course very commonly adopted, that is, using what is called an "elastic band." This is a most expensive thing for those affected, who are often far from rich, and it is worse than useless. It is a mere forcing of the swollen veins from the surface, by outward pressure, while nothing is done to lighten their work or to increase their ability to do that work. An elastic band worn just above the knee is a vastly better remedy. A piece of rubber webbing, such as is used for strong shoe gaskets by bootmakers, about six inches broad and three-eighths of a yard long, makes a very good appliance for this purpose. It costs but a trifle, and is easily made by one who can stitch the two ends together. See that it is neither too wide nor too narrow on the limb. In this way it lightens the work of the weak and overstrained veins. A case is noted of a man with varicose veins, swollen almost to bursting, in both legs, and most painful, who put on such bandages and continued digging and working with perfect ease, while the veins sensibly contracted with no other treatment than this.

But it is not wise to confine remedial measures in such cases to the use of bandages. Rest is, in some instances, absolutely necessary. Strong, moist heat, applied by a bran poultice across the haunches, after olive oil has been rubbed on gently, and with the same rubbed on afterward to retain the heating which has been secured, is of great importance.

Proceed in this way, if possible, with a case of swollen veins—secure the confinement of the patient to his bed for at least a week. The first night, an hour before the usual bed-time, place a large bran poultice across the hips; after having rubbed on a little warm olive oil let this remain, say 15 minutes; remove and rub again with the oil; then place a good, broad band of new flannel round the body. In the morning apply another poultice in the same way, and for the same length of time to the same part. When that is removed, rub the limbs gently for a few moments, first with hot vinegar and then with the olive oil, after which dress them in a pair of cotton stockings.

If, at the end of a week, the veins are not all right, order a repetition of the same treatment. If you can secure this you will not likely need to order anything further. For security, a bandage, or, if both legs are bad, two bandages should afterward be worn above the knees, and standing too long strictly forbidden.

I have known of very good results in cases of varicose veins from the use of oil salts or tissue elements, but it is wise to have them selected for each case by some one who understands their use, as the best results are secured in that way, although these are natural and harmless home remedies.

I sincerely hope that this lecture may reach many poor sufferers from this disease. They may, perhaps, suggest to some the benevolence of giving, when it is within their power, the means of the rest needed by those afflicted. This can be done in many ways. Where a full cure in one of these cases is a gift, it is a gift indeed. He who does not forget a "cup of cold water" will not fail to remember such a benefit conferred upon one of his "little ones."

CLUB NOTES.

Watervliet.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I wish to give a good remedy for scald head in young babies. I have known it to effect a cure in several cases. Take one large teaspoonful of tar, one cup of unsalted lard, and one cup of the inner bark of common elder, and boil all together. First boil the lard and elder bark and then drain off the liquid and add the tar to it. When cold it is ready for use. This remedy has cured three children whom the doctors said could not be cured, and when this remedy is used the patient will stay cured. Yours truly, Mrs. B. C.

Sometimes the methods of home treatment given by mothers are better than any doctor can give. The above is harmless in any event, and I would like to have reports from others who use it.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind.—Dear Sir: As I understand that the subscribers of this paper have the privilege of writing you in regard to affairs of health, I herewith ask you to be so kind and tell me what is the best treatment for rheumatism, which moves from one place to another in the body. In the summer, it affects the back—which is weak—and the right wrist, the most severely, while in winter it reaches farther up to the shoulders and breast, where it has attacked me now. This attack is very severe, for I can hardly breathe, and phlegm and mucus have accumulated like an iceberg in my chest. Sometimes it lasts a few days or longer, and then I will be rid of it for a little while, but it returns readily with every change of the weather, also when I become a little warm and suddenly cool off. I have a catarrh of the throat. I have a great deal of trouble to clear it, and seems as if it would suffocate me. This troubles me the most in the upper part of the chest. "What it is, I feel better, but when I become chilled and the attack of rheumatism comes on, I am much worse. I thank you in advance for your kind instructions for me personally, and also for what I secure from the newspapers. Respectfully, L. F.

The form of rheumatism which you have described is caused by uric acid crystals, which in passing through the circulation cut and inflame the delicate lining of the veins. This sometimes is called neuralgia. If you would make a practice of getting to a creamery daily and drinking about three quarts of fresh buttermilk, say drink one quart at three different times daily, it would go far toward permanently eliminating the disease from the system. For immediate relief, however, I think you would be wise to procure about half an ounce of the Schuessler tissue element or cell salt known as Magnesia Phos., also about an equal quantity of Nat. Phos. in what is called 6x tablets. This should be taken alternately about every three hours, two tablets at a time, from the time you arise until you go to bed. These tissue elements will not harm you in any way and do not injure the stomach. You should also use great care to masticate all of your food very thoroughly.

All communications for the Home Health Club should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., and contain name and address in full, and at least four cents in postage.

THE MINORITY

CHAPTER XV.

Mr. Trundell had not given much thought to the syndicate matter since he had delivered the firm's ultimatum to Mr. Harlan, but the scheme had revealed big profits for the insiders, and though he had shelved it temporarily, he had never for an instant regarded it as time wasted. Mr. Trundell was too experienced a business man to count his chickens before they were hatched, but the failure to realize prospective profits irritated him almost as much as actual pecuniary loss. It was in no very amiable mood, therefore, that he had telephoned Mr. Harlan for information about the Confederate Machine companies, and he interpreted the vague report of progress in a most unfavorable manner.

hatched, but the failure to realize prospective profits irritated him almost as much as actual pecuniary loss. It was in no very amiable mood, therefore, that he had telephoned Mr. Harlan for information about the Confederate Machine companies, and he interpreted the vague report of progress in a most unfavorable manner.

Mr. Trundell picked up the tape and glanced at the quotation of the MILLING COMPANIES' stock. If Harlan was borrowing on that collateral, his good faith might possibly be insured. There was no use taking risks. Mr. Trundell handled the tape again, looked over the sales sheet of the day before, figured for a few moments on a pad, and pushed the electric button in his desk. As though in answer, the door leading to the private hall opened, and a messenger entered, laid a card before his employer, and stepped back awaiting instructions. The senior partner scowlingly picked up the pasteboard, read the name "Peter McManis," muttered "Who the devil," stopped, and then continued figuring on his pad.

"Tell Mr. Seftner to come here," he ordered.

"Yes, sir. And the gentleman who's called."

"Send Seftner here. Don't you understand English? What the—"

The clerk fled, and in a moment more Mr. Seftner, the firm's confidential man, approached his chief, who was still angrily figuring.

"Find out what Milling is in the loan crowd," he ordered, "and whose it is. Bring me their last report and list of stockholders. Drop everything else till you get those things done."

"Very well, sir. Anything else?"

"No. Yes, there is," he growled, as his eye fell on the card before him. "That damned idiot Parks brought in this. Find out who the fellow is and what he wants."

He flipped the card across the desk as he spoke, and rising from his seat, took up the tape again. He was still studying it when Seftner returned, and it was some moments before he raised his eyes and granted the necessary recognition.

"Mr. McManis says you don't know him and he doesn't know you," reported the clerk. "He insists that his business is private and personal, and when I informed him that unless he prepare for war. You've had an organization here for years, but you've let it go to seed because things were going your way. Now what I want you to do is to revive it, so in case you need some backing you'll know where to look for it."

"An' where'll that be?"

Pat Mullin's voice boomed the question from the rear benches so quickly that his pipe was in his mouth again before the nearest heads turned to stare at him.

"Where will that be? At the Central association, of course. The question shows where you'd be at in case of trouble. That man don't even know what power is back of the various lodges, and I bet there's lots of other things he doesn't know."

"You're right. OI don't know your salary."

A laugh greeted this retort, but McManis joined in it as he answered.

"Well, you would know if you looked after your own interest more, and you can have something to say about it, too, if you find I don't earn it. What we've got to talk about now is whether it's better to have good treatment for to-day and trust to the future, or Mr. Kennard for to-day and Trusts for to-morrow."

A ripple of applause from the front benches followed this period, and McManis paused as the sound of encouragement became more general.

"Let me tell you something about what we've done," he continued. "Up at Farjean's they had piece-work done to such a fine point, there wasn't a man or woman earning a full day's pay. We changed that. At the Bol-derson works they made half their output with apprentices, and nobody ever knew it till we took a look in. Sanger leased his factories to the Ed-lestone company, and the first Sanger's men heard of it was when they got their walking papers, and a new lot of Edlestone's people was ready to march in and take their places. I don't say there's any such games being played here, but I did hear one thing this evening which sort of made me cook my ears."

McManis paused for an instant and glanced across the smoky room to make sure that he had aroused the curiosity of his auditors and was holding their attention.

"I heard," he continued slowly, "of a man by the name of Ben Homans being bounced for suggesting to Mr. Kennard that the farmers' work be done by union men."

The audience looked at one another inquiringly, but for a few moments no one spoke.

"I don't believe it," muttered Kerrigan, on the second bench; "the boss don't care whether we're union men or not, and I ain't heard nothing about Homans being bounced."

"Well, I have," asserted another man. "Barton paid him off at the whistle, not long since."

McManis smiled.

"That's what I've been telling you," he said, "you don't know what's going on. It may be all right and it may be all wrong, but what I say is, if you don't like what's happened after you do find out, you can't help yourselves or each other, unless you're organized to do it. What's that you say?"

He stooped toward a man on the front bench who whispered something and pointed toward the rear door. Then he peered for a moment over the heads of the audience, as though trying to single out some individual.

"A gentleman up here says Mr. Ben Homans has just come in," he announced, as he gazed down the room. "If so, I'd like to ask him if he's been turned down, and if so, why."

There was a movement in the group of men gathered about the door, and Ben Homans took a cigar out of his mouth and gave a surly glance at the speaker. Every head in the room turned to look at him.

"Yes, I was," he answered shortly, "and walked on like dirt, too."

McManis waited to observe the effect of this announcement before he spoke again.

Every day sees an army of worn out women dragging themselves to work or forcing themselves to attend to their household duties—women whose trouble lies in an overstrain or over-exertion at some time in the past—women who stay in this condition and think themselves beyond repair, because they know nothing of the wonderful power of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give them back their health, strength and vitality, by their ability to re-supply the lost nerve energy, to build up the system to manufacture good rich blood, and give increased weight by making the digestion strong and vigorous.

Mrs. Ella Smith, of No. 48 Miller St., Newark, N. Y., writes:

"Last summer I was so weak I staggered when I walked. I was very nervous, easily excited, could not rest at night, blood thin, appetite poor, and hands trembled—I was in a low state of health. About this time I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and though everything else had failed, these pills put me on my feet in good health, and that quickly, too. It was not long before I was eating and sleeping well—the nervousness and trembling gone—the blood rich and my strength back. They are a grand medicine and I feel vigorous and strong in every way." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. CHAPTER XVI.

"I've got nothing to say concerning the boss of this place," Mr. McManis leaned against one of the pillars of the little lecture-room and addressed his audience in a conversational tone of voice. "I don't know Mr. Kennard, but from what I hear, he's all a boss should be. But that ain't the point, boys. You haven't got any insurance on his life, I suppose, and you don't hold a written guaranty that he's going to continue in business forever. What's the use of organization when everything's lovely, you say? To keep it so, I answer. In time of peace prepare for war. You've had an organization here for years, but you've let it go to seed because things were going your way. Now what I want you to do is to revive it, so in case you need some backing you'll know where to look for it."

"An' where'll that be?"

Pat Mullin's voice boomed the question from the rear benches so quickly that his pipe was in his mouth again before the nearest heads turned to stare at him.

"Where will that be? At the Central association, of course. The question shows where you'd be at in case of trouble. That man don't even know what power is back of the various lodges, and I bet there's lots of other things he doesn't know."

"You're right. OI don't know your salary."

A laugh greeted this retort, but McManis joined in it as he answered.

"Well, you would know if you looked after your own interest more, and you can have something to say about it, too, if you find I don't earn it. What we've got to talk about now is whether it's better to have good treatment for to-day and trust to the future, or Mr. Kennard for to-day and Trusts for to-morrow."

A ripple of applause from the front benches followed this period, and McManis paused as the sound of encouragement became more general.

"Let me tell you something about what we've done," he continued. "Up at Farjean's they had piece-work done to such a fine point, there wasn't a man or woman earning a full day's pay. We changed that. NEW BARGAIN DAY FOR THE BUYERS

Wednesday To Be the Time of Universal Offerings of Bargains Each Week.

A movement has been started to concentrate the efforts of the merchants in making Wednesday of each week a day of special bargains in Janesville. It will be a day of unusual offerings in all the principal stores of the city and the Gazette will co-operate with the merchants in the establishment and maintenance of this special Bargain Day.

Every Monday and Tuesday a list of the bargain articles offered will appear in the paper for the special Wednesday sales. The opportunity for saving on purchases of the articles offered by merchants on that day will be the worthy of the buyers' careful attention and the announcements each week should be sought for. Janesville is an inviting place to the thousands of shoppers within easy access by interurban and steam railways and as a trading center is famed throughout the entire southern portion of Wisconsin. It is not only the distributing point of Rock county but is the mecca for shoppers from all the adjacent territory with in easy reach of Janesville. The reason is obvious, here we have large, well arranged stores the equal of which are not found in cities of twice and even three times the size. In these days of "Frenzied Finance" the search is for the original and the unique and the modern captains of industry are ever on the alert to improve conditions which will facilitate business transactions.

However prosperous the past year has been, it is really the beginning of an era of business activity. With the soil yielding rich harvests of easily marketed products and the manufacturing enterprises distributing goodly sums each week to wage earners, the commercial establishments of this city are receiving an impetus which assures a bright business year. The new Special Wednesday Bargain Day will work good to both merchants and buyers.

The Gazette has shared in the general prosperity of this community and has grown in two ways—first, in circulation, by which its favor with the public as a newspaper is measured; second, in volume of advertising patronage, by which its remunerative power as an advertising medium is measured. The Gazette continually reiterates the statement that the reader is not getting one-half the value of his newspaper unless he reads the advertising in its columns. You would not build a house without first asking for bids nor should you do your every day buying in comparative ignorance of the "bids" submitted by the various stores in the advertising columns. That this new feature will be popular is evidenced by the already large number of careful buyers who regularly consult the Gazette's advertising columns as a guide to their expenditures. Keep your bargain eye open next Monday and Tuesday.

HOUSES IN ONE SOLID PIECE.

Novel Plan of Constructing Them of Concrete Is Tried in New York City.

A novel plan of house building has made its appearance in some of the suburbs, says the New York World. The usual way has been to build a house out of stone, brick or wood, in pieces which are mortared or nailed and can be sectionally taken apart. Under the new plan a house is all one piece and after a few years' exposure the walls are like solid rock. The material used is concrete.

Every one has seen the way in which the workmen on the subway mixed their concrete to make the lining and filling for the tunnel. In the new method of building house walls the concrete is mixed in much like manner and poured into a mold. Beginning with the foundation the mold is raised foot by foot as the concrete is poured in and hardens, until, when the roof is reached, the whole wall is a solid mass. Holes are left for the doors and windows during the construction.

This system is cheaper than stone or brick and at the present price of lumber and shingles, than wood, unless the wooden house is flimsily constructed. Its advantage is also in permanency in painting and repairs. The concrete of which the walls are built is more cheaply mixed than the concrete used for subway work, where there has to be a constant jar and more tensile strength required. The proportions on subway work and sand. On house work one part of cement to seven or eight parts of gravel or crushed stone insures a strong wall, if properly made and set, and if a coating of best quality Portland cement is washed over the outside.

Where gravel, small stones and sand are readily accessible and cheaply to be had, as they are in almost all of New York's suburbs, the main expense of a concrete house is for the cement. This can be lessened by using the cheaper grades of Rosendale cement for the main walls and using the more expensive Portland cement only as a wash.

If plenty of suitable stones have been found in digging the cellar they may be used for the foundation, or the concrete construction may begin from the foundation trench and continue solidly to the roof.

The molds are either wood or metal, with a hollow core. The object of the core is to save material without loss of strength and to provide for an air circulation within the wall. Hollow concrete walls are cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter than a solid stone or brick wall.

Walls made in this manner may be tinted any color both inside and out by coloring the Portland cement wash. The color then cannot wear off, as it is part of the wall. Floor beams are set in the concrete as in a brick or stone wall now. Windows, doors and frames are inserted as now.

Several of these concrete houses have been ornamented in a novel way by sculptor friends of the owners. The material is almost as soft as clay when first put up. It can readily be modeled into faces, figures, scroll work or any kind of designs. Skillfully done this concrete modeling gives the effect of stone carving at a small fraction of the expense.

INDIANS FOR ARMY.

School at Carlisle to Train Men for Service in Ranks.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Indian Commissioner Francis E. Leupp has decided to inaugurate a military system of training at the Carlisle Indian school, so as to qualify the Indians for service as privates in the regular army.

Ever since the Commissioner Leupp has been imbued with the idea that the time has come to do something more toward breaking up the tribal relations of Indians, and he believes the plan which he proposes to adopt is a capital one. He fully appreciates the great value of military training, and if he is successful in carrying out his scheme the Carlisle Indian school will be transformed into another West Point, the only difference being that this institution will turn out men equipped to serve in the ranks, while the West Point academy supplies officers.

The new commissioner has discussed his plan with President Roosevelt, who has endorsed it heartily. It will not be necessary, according to the belief of the commissioner, to ask permission of congress to change the character of the Indian school at Carlisle, as he believes he has ample authority under the present law to conduct the school in such a way as to bring about the best results and to provide for the welfare of the young Indians.

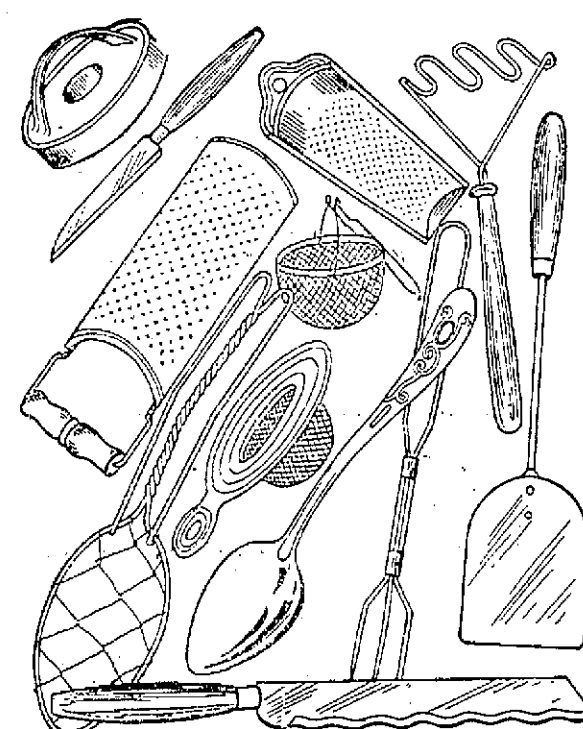

Some years ago the government attempted to make soldiers of older Indians, and for a long time the scheme worked admirably. As long as there was work in the field for Indians to do they made excellent soldiers. The Indian naturally is fond of warfare, and as long as he was given an opportunity to follow his bent he gave the military authorities no trouble whatever and made a model soldier, being amenable to discipline and was apparently perfectly satisfied with his lot.

After the fighting was over, however, army life palled on poor Lo, and as soon as he was required to go into camp and to perform the ordinary and monotonous duties of the garrison he rebelled against authority, deserted from the army, and made all sorts of trouble for his superiors. In fact, he became so insubordinate that it was necessary to eliminate him from the army.

Notwithstanding the difficulties experienced by the government in breaking up tribal relations and in preventing young Indians educated at Carlisle from returning to their old habits of life, Commissioner Leupp believes his scheme will work successfully and in a few years Indians educated at Carlisle will become a valuable part of the regular army.

Another innovation at this Indian school will be the establishment of a hospital for training Indian girls in the profession of trained nurse. Commissioner Leupp will ask congress for $200,000 to be used for this purpose.
